

MEHDI SHARIFI

SOLO AI BUILDER / FULL-STACK AI ENGINEER

I turn ambiguous product visions into deployed, useful software. Shortlist is the proof: an AI-powered ATS I designed, built, tested, and shipped solo.

THE PRODUCT

Evidence, not AI vibes.

- Screens PDF, DOCX, TXT, and Markdown resumes against a canonical job description.
- Separates parse quality from role fit and grounds six scoring dimensions in resume evidence.
- Runs a durable recruiter pipeline with positions, stages, reviewers, audit events, and human decisions.
- Shows the original PDF beside ATS evidence and protects the challenge position and showcase resume.
- Sends candidate receipts plus controlled HR and reviewer notifications after successful intake.

WHAT I OWNED

One builder, full surface area.

- Product framing, scope control, reviewer journey, UX, visual system, and responsive behavior.
- Frontend, server routes, AI prompt/schema, file validation, scoring normalization, and error contracts.
- Authentication, CSRF, role capabilities, PostgreSQL model, private object storage, and migrations.
- SMTP automation, allowlists, templates, idempotency, auditability, DNS diagnosis, and deployment.
- Test strategy, regression fixes, production verification, documentation, and operational trade-offs.

DEPLOY EARLY. CLOSE VERTICAL SLICES.

The first deployment is a real walking skeleton: landing and login, health endpoint, fictional seeded assessment, environment contract, and the smallest upload-to-result path.

ENGINEERING JUDGMENT

- Deterministic structured call over an agent swarm: lower latency, clearer contracts, easier audit.
- Managed PostgreSQL and Blob over custom infrastructure: spend the deadline on recruiter value.
- Archive plus audit over destructive deletion; acknowledgement and notification over autonomous rejection.
